People from various walks of life are all set to make their contribution to solving traffic problems now. The Pune traffic police have formally launched its initiative whereby a select group of citizens-called the Friends of Traffic police (FOTP)- will provide all possible help regarding traffic problems.

The 156 citizens who have been selected for the initiative in the first phase, will be working in coordination with the traffic police and helping them manage traffic at road junctions. These volunteers, also known as 'Vahatuk police Mitra', would generate road safety and traffic discipline awareness on the city's roads.

The traffic police have also promised immediate action on all complaints that the FOTP provide about traffic problems and violations. For instance, drivers indulging in dangerous or rash driving will face action on any written complaints given by the FOTP.

Girish Deshpande, member of the FOTP, says, "The initiative would definitely make a positive impact. We would be making our contributions in various ways such as identifying traffic problems, suggesting possible solutions and so on. Although the members received their identity cards only recently, it has been nearly two months now that many of us have been working in coordination with the traffic police. If there is a traffic violation by an individual, the presence of the FOTP helps in diffusing the tension."

Another member of the FOTP, graphic designer Aarti Deo, said she has already been working with the Save Pune Traffic Movement and had participated in a study on pedestrian signals. "When there is a traffic problem at a junction or a road, everybody tries to race ahead without stopping and providing any solution. As FOTP, we will speak to people as well as work in coordination with the traffic police and the wardens," she said.
