By working at Stree Mukti Sanghatana, Masoom and Responsible Netism the students benefitted in the following ways:-

Knowledge:

- Understanding the NGO landscape: This includes the history, types, roles, and functions of NGOs, as well as their legal and funding frameworks.
- Critical analysis of social issues: Students were equipped to critically examine social problems and understand the complex factors that contribute to them.
- Understanding of community engagement and participatory approaches: Students learnt how to effectively collaborate with communities and marginalized groups in designing and implementing projects.
- Awareness of ethical considerations in NGO work: This includes topics like transparency, accountability, conflict of interest, and cultural sensitivity.

Skills:

- Communication and interpersonal skills: Effective communication with diverse stakeholders is crucial in NGO work. Students developed skills in written and verbal communication, active listening, and conflict resolution.
- Research and analytical skills: Students learnt to gather and analyze data, identify needs, and evaluate the effectiveness of NGO interventions.

Attitudes and Values:

- Commitment to social justice: A core value in the non-profit sector is working towards a more just and equitable society. Students will develop a critical understanding of social issues and a commitment to making a positive difference.
- Cultural sensitivity and respect for diversity: Working with diverse communities requires respect and understanding of different cultures and perspectives. Students will develop intercultural competence and sensitivity.
